COPYRIGHT.

There is a copyright law here which is intended to protect the author of "any map, book, chart, musical composition, print, cut, engraving, photograph, painting, drawing or statue, or the author of any model or design intended to be perfected and completed as a work of the fine arts." All countries have come to an agreement that the work of men's brains or the product of their mental industry should be protected as much as possible, for a certain term of years. With us it is for twenty years. There is a good deal of brain work here, for so small a place, and persons who have done valuable literary work should be careful to protect themselves. It was not so long ago that a certain publication undertook the re-publication of Professor Alexander's "History of the Hawaiian People" piece meal. The whole work would have been re-published in a mangled form by this time unless the proprietors had stepped in and pointed out that their copyright was being infringed.

Newspaper work is the legitimate plunder of the literary pirate, and many papers now copyright their articles. Copyright does not prevent the use of extracts from books and articles. It does prevent anyone from taking bodily a full article and appropriating it as his own. It is quite probable that the enforcement of the right here would be of advantage. It is manifestly unfair that the literary labor of any man should be filched from him without a word of comment or objection. We believe that a case under the copyright law will shortly appear upon our law calendar. This will be the second in our legal annals.

MASSACHUSETTS, says the Outlook, has been going in for road making. For some time there has been a highway commission in that State, and in 1895 the Legislature appropriated $400,000 for roads. From published statements we learn that petitions to the highway commissions already ask for seven hundred miles of road construction, and it is expected that eventually upward of two thousand miles of road will come under its control. This is one-tenth of the whole roads of the State. What we need here is some such commission, and the Legislature should find means, by loan, of carrying out its recommendations. With good roads much of the landed property of this country would be quadrupled in value and the population would increase rapidly. There are many questions to which the coming Legislature will have to give very careful attention, but few, if any, are so important to the welfare of all classes of the community as goods roads. Open up our fertile lands and an era of great prosperity is bound to follow; a prosperity, too, that will be founded upon a solid basis.

The case of Carl Klemme came up before the court yesterday. The defendant pleaded guilty. The Attorney-General asked for suspension of sentence and Mr. Klemme, under that restriction, goes forth a free man as long as he abides by the laws of the Republic. The Government in this case have shown the same clear cut policy they have throughout. They have laid down distinctively that no man shall return to these islands, once banished, unless he does so by leave of the Government. A government would not be worth its name on paper if it did not maintain its point. But a government can be clement and in Mr. Klemme's case this Government has been clement.

It has taken into consideration the circumstances of Mr. Klemme's case and has dealt with him in a manner which must be appreciated by every man or woman who believes in fair play.

In our notice of the President's message we quoted his remarks upon the German discrimination against the United States Insurance Companies. The President's message has borne fruit from the State of Missouri. Commissioner Waddel has written to the manager of "Prussian National Insurance Company" that unless the German Government changed its policy, he would, after February 1st, refuse to renew the licenses of German companies in Missouri. This shows, that two can play at the same game. Whether the game is worth the candle is what each player must decide. It brings the principle of free trade and fair trade to almost an issue. Other states of the Union do not view the action of Missouri with satisfaction.

MINISTER KING's visit to Maui will result in putting on foot better roads for the homesteads on the slopes of Haleakala. It is by such personal inspection as this that the needs of the various districts can be intelligently attended to by the Ministry. The better the Ministers become personally acquainted with the actual condition of affairs the better the country will be governed. Especially is this true of the Minister of the Interior, before whom come so many of the various schemes for the development of the islands.

There seems every prospect that both this year and the next, are going to prove very prosperous ones for Hawaii. The crop outlook is exceedingly good. Reports from Hilo and Hamakua, from Spreckelsville, from Hahaione, from the various plantations of Kauai, and of this island all promise good yields. The market outlook is also good. It is a pleasant thing to begin the year with good future opportunities. We seem to have passed through the "black cloud" and to be getting at the silver lining.

Timely Topics

JANUARY 8, 1896.

STEADY GRIND—"I have learned from observation" says Chauncey Depew, "that three things surely happen to a man who works without relaxation. In the first place he becomes nervous, irritable and hard to get along with. In the second place the grade of his work falls off, and he is liable to err in his judgment. In the third place he dies suddenly." These remarks of the famous after dinner speaker we consider not only decided applicable in the sense in which they are intended, but in the way of a great many of the manufacturers that are constantly placing inferior goods on the market and claiming them as superior to the product of older and better known houses. This is especially true of cutlery. There are houses who place this class of goods on the market that are made up for show and sale only, but whose wear is warranted only until they have been once scoured. This is not the case with the goods of well known and established houses whose reputation depends upon the wear of goods.

They pride themselves on what they make being made of the best material that money and experience can turn out. The John Russell Cutlery Company have a reputation that is envied by many and equalled by few. Ex S. S. Australia we received a consignment of their high grade cutlery consisting of carvers (in cases), slicing, kitchen, butcher, hunting and cake knives, as well as complete sets for the dinner from the fish course to the desert. Agate Iron Ware is too well known to need any comment on our part. Suffice it to that we have "it" in Agate Iron Ware. The Bradley and Hubbard Company have been so rushed with orders that they have found it impossible to meet and turn out the work as fast as the orders were received. If you desire something new in these goods we can accommodate you, and the designs sent us are the newest of the new in both lamps and chandeliers.

Which the tourist and others who are desirous of taking pictures of the scenery of the Hawaiian Islands have, is the nearness and easy accessibility to the most romantic and picturesque points.
